Cervical cancer is highly preventable. Regular screenings detect early cellular changes before cancer even has a chance to develop.

- Who needs it: Anyone with a cervix aged 25 to 74 who has ever been sexually active.
- How often: Typically once every 5 years (under newer HPV-based guidelines), or as recommended by your doctor.
- What to expect: A quick, simple, and painless swab test that looks for Human Papillomavirus (HPV).

Do not put your well-being on the back burner. Booking an appointment is a quick step that secures peace of mind for your future.
